Global Agenda: Issues & Priorities for Senior In-house Counsel Worldwide

We are pleased to announce the release of an international research study report entitled Global Agenda: Issues & Priorities for Senior In-house Counsel Worldwide which is the fruition of several months of work undertaken by the World Law Group (international network of independent law firms to which our firm belongs) and project partner LexisNexis Martindale-Hubbell International.

It is a unique report in that it highlights, among other things, current key challenges faced by chief legal officers and general counsels in some of the world's largest corporations, as well as action plans they have found most effective to meet these challenges. It also points out some interesting differences by region.

The project was undertaken primarily to provide WLG members with a better understanding of the major concerns and management priorities of senior in-house counsels of major global companies in order to provide them with optimized legal solutions and responses.
